ALUMNI NEWS

To Promote, Recognize and Reward Present and Future Alumni of EAHS

FALL 2017

ALUMNI SPOTLIGHT: HANNAH SMITH (2013)

Upon graduating with the Class of 2013, Hannah Smith pursued a degree in Communications at Robert Morris University and graduated this past May with honors. She now works for WTAJ News as a reporter in State College.

During Smith's time at Everett Area High School, she was a varsity cheerleader that cheered for football, basketball, wrestling and competition. Smith was also a member of the National Honor Society.

Smith said that had it not been for certain experiences she had while attending Everett, she never would have pursued a career in broadcast television.

"I used to be terrible at public speaking. I dreaded every time I had to give a class presentation. That's why I was shocked that Mrs. Kelly Winegardner, my 10th grade geometry teacher, convinced me to be one of the girls running for Fall Foliage Queen." Smith said.

As part of the competition, Smith had to write and present a public speech. She practiced it for several weeks with Mrs. Winegardner in preparation for the day. When Smith gave her speech, she finally got over her fear of public speaking.

"Had it not been for Mrs. Winegardner pushing me to to have this experience and helping me to overcome that fear, I have no idea what I would be doing today," Smith said.

Smith also credits Stephanie Leiderman, who worked as a college advisor during Smith's senior year, with helping her to attend Robert Morris University.

"I was set on trying to go to school out of state, but Miss. Liederman said I needed to apply to at least one or two schools in Pennsylvania," Smith said. "I am so glad she fought me on that one and had me apply to RMU."

Smith said the experiences she had at RMU is what helped her succeed in journalism.

While in college, Smith covered the 2014 Gubernatorial Election, interviewed Pennsylvania Governor Tom Wolf, anchored and reported for several award-winning student-run television shows, covered the 2016 Democratic National Convention, and even studied abroad twice in Ireland and Northern Ireland.

Her experiences at RMU also allowed her to land a job with WPXI-TV in Pittsburgh her junior year as a Digital Content Producer – where she worked up until her graduation in May. But she said none of that would have been possible without the foundation teachers at Everett gave her.

"While I didn't realize it at the time, each of my teachers in high school really did impact my future and success in journalism," Smith said. "My English teachers probably had the most direct impact because journalism is all about writing. They really helped to give me a foundation for what I do every day."
